A morning visit to the Parc Floral de la Prairie, which is able to grow more than 300 varieties of camellia, thanks to the particular terroir of the Cévennes. The parc has a nursery and a shop. Lunch can be either a picnic or a cold meal of local charcuterie and cheeses supplied by the owners.

In the afternoon, we will go to the Terrasses du Bosquet, a beautiful example of an urban garden which focusses on fruit and vegetables. It also has a Mediterranean garden and a medieval garden. We will be guided by a facilitator from the Centre National de Pomologie.

INTERNATIONAL ACTIVITIES

Wednesday 11 March 19h00 French time
Corfu gardens and flowers - talk by Zoom, in English
Organised by Mediterranean Plants and Gardens

This talk, based on an MPG trip to Corfu in April 2024, is by professional gardener, Jackie Hunt. The tour was based on a book, Gardens of Corfu by Rachel Weaving, with photographs by Marianne Majerus, and included time observing wildflowers in their natural habitat. Jackie will also talk about plants she has since introduced to the dry garden at Turn End in Buckinghamshire where she works.

Friday 28 March to Saturday 5 April
Wild flora of Elba
Organised by Mediterranean Plants and Gardens

An exploration of Elba's natural flora, with a 20-seater minibus and walking. The group will stay in a simple hotel (the Belmare) in Porto Azzurro which is a nice small seaside town with a couple of beaches nearby, though the weather may not be very inviting for swimming! Botanical guide: Goffredo Filibeck, who teaches at the University of Tuscia and led our visits to Maremma, which we ran twice because members enjoyed them very much. There will be at least three or four kilometres of walking – some on difficult terrain – each day, more if the group is enthusiastic about walking.

Accommodation, six dinners, most lunches, guiding, the ferry crossing to the island, and local transport on the island included. Price is expected to be EUR 1200. Single supplement EUR 350.

Sunday 22 to Thursday 26 June
Summer garden tour in Fife
Organised by Mediterranean Plants and Gardens

This distinct area of Scotland, bounded to the south by the Forth and to the north by the Tay, has fine gardens, some with views across the estuaries. We will visit gardens restored to former glory on country estates and others developed in recent years. Most of the tour will be in the East Neuk and we will stay just over the Tay on the waterfront in Dundee, with interesting cultural sites nearby. Thank you to Teasses for the image of their garden.

More details and a booking form on the MPG website.

Thursday 14 to Wednesday 27 August
The unique flora of the Western and Northern Cape
Organised by Mediterranean Plants and Gardens

This tour will start and finish in Cape Town and will focus on the biodiversity of the unique fynbos vegetation and diversity of geophytes. Participants will see familiar garden plants growing in their natural habitat as well as many that are quite new. The Cape floristic region is home to the greatest non-tropical concentration of higher plant species in the world, with 9,000 species crammed into its small area. More than 6,200 (69 percent) of these are found nowhere else in the world.

The tour will be led by experienced guide, Frank Gaudé. An optional extension from 27 – 31 August will provide an opportunity to see the sights of Cape Town and its surrounds. For more details, and to book, visit the MPG website.

NEWS AND INFORMATION

New on the website

Visites aux jardins de la Pomme d'Ambre et du Domaine de l'Olivette

Read Jacqueline Potter's account of visits to gardens in Fréjus and Roquebrune-sur-Argens, in the Var. Despite it being November, the day was sunny and dry, and both gardens were full of interesting plants, some in full bloom. The colourful foliage and textures offered a rich and varied spectacle.

A garden in Maussane-les-Alpilles

In 2018, members Clare and Mark Armour kindly invited us to visit their garden, which included an ambitious, newly planted project, designed by James Basson. The MGF team has created a new 'Garden Diary', which illustrates progress since this time, and includes some magnificent recent photographs taken by acclaimed garden photographer Marianne Majerus.

Flowering Acacias and other Australian Plants and Trees

Some of the first acacia species were brought from Australia by the French and British in the late 18th century. They found ideal growing conditions in the Maures and Tanneron Massifs, similar to those of their native land. Jacqueline Potter reports on visits to an acacia nursery and a garden specialising in Australian and South African flora, both in the town of Bormes-les-Mimosas, Var.

The Mediterranean Garden at Adelaide Botanic Garden

The Mediterranean Garden within ABG was created in response to the 2001 – 2009 drought in South Australia, which highlighted the need to garden in harmony with the local climate, working with the scarcity of water, rather than fighting against it. In June 2022, it was decided it was time for the garden to be renewed.

Read Virginia Kennett and Christine Daniels' story of what happened next and see images of how the garden looks today.

Members' gardens to visit

Jardin de la Roquette, Tourbes

Liliane et Roland Leclercq have added their garden to our list of members' gardens open to visit by appointment.

Roland writes:

"We began work on our 3000 m2 garden in 2016. It sits on a hill in a Hérault village and has a view across the surrounding countryside to Mont St Clair, near Sète."

To make an appointment to visit, contact Roland Leclercq.

Christine Daniels writes:

An MGF member came up with the idea of a 'Members' Gardens to Visit' page soon after the association was formed, in 2014. The idea quickly took off, and at one point there were more than a dozen gardens on the list, in départements from the Aude to the Alpes-Maritimes. However, in the last couple of years, for a variety of reasons, the number has reduced, and the list is in need of revitalisation.

I very much enjoyed opening my former garden to occasional visits from members, typically three or four visits per year, always by appointment at a time to suit. There is no need to make any special effort to make the garden look perfect, indeed sharing ideas about maintenance can be as interesting as the chat about plant successes and failures. So, please consider the idea of putting your garden on the list. It will be fun, and you may get some helpful ideas. If you are tempted, please send me an email and I hope to be able to answer any questions you may have.

WHAT IS IT

Chantal Guiraud challenged us to guess the name of this flower. The name of the plant is Dracaena fragrans (cornstalk dracaena), native throughout tropical Africa. In European countries, it is primarily popular as a houseplant. Dracaena fragrans are not reliable bloomers, but when growing conditions are right, and the plant is mature (more than 5 years old), it can bloom one to three times per year.

AND FINALLY

The laurustinus are blooming at the end of winter. So wrote Colette (French writer, 1873-1954) in 'L'Etoile de Vesper' 1946.

"Just enough time to serve a small dish of ephemeral showers on the platter of viburnum flowers then scorching spring will wreck all the blossoms."

Best wishes
